The Giants went over to Brooklyn yesterday loaded for bear and they came back over the Bridge last night with the pelt. The New-Yorkers have wen three consecutive victories from their rivals across the Bridge. Over 5,000 people went to Eastern Park to witness the game. The Giants outplayed their opponents at every dnt. Rusic pitched superbly and his support was ex-runs were made-two of them by Connor. It was the first victory the Giants have wen in Brooklyn this year. The Giants took the lead at the start, scoring two run in the opening maing. After Stafford had struck out rificed him to second. Davis hit safely to left field and Ward scored, Davis taking second on Shoch's fumble. Connor's hit to centre brought home Davis. The New-

Yorks increased their lead by one more run in the third on a hit by Tiernan and a two-bagger by Davis. The home players got their first run in the fourth inning. The Glants added three runs to their list in the fifth inning on two bases on balls, errors by Sharrott. Kinslow and Cercoran and a home-run by Conner. The Giants gained three more runs in the sixth.

The Bridegrooms tried to rally in the eighth, but two runs were the best they could do. Sharrott's home-run scored Shoch. In the ninth Couner made his second home-run on a terrific drive to centre field. The score :

The price of property in the burned district has advanced rapidly since the fire. John Copcutt had an offer of $6,000 for a lot of 20 feet 6 inches front the morning after the fire, and refused. On Saturday he wanted $8,000 for a lot 25 feet front, and yesterday his price had advanced to $9,000. He had bid of $60,000 for the entire plot, by the owner of the adjoining property, and refused, saying he would accept not a penny less than $90,000. H. R. Jacobs, of New-York, is said to have made an offer for the property, on which he would build a theatre. A proposition has been made that the market and for a municipal building that would accommodate all the city offices. This proposition seems to meet with approval in many quarters. Housekeepers especially commend it. Although a large quantity of farm and garden produce is raised grades of fruit and vegetables. The reason for this is the lack of a market place. Farmers say that they prefer to take their products to New-York City and sell at a lower figure than they could command in Yonkers rather than peddle about the streets, where their goods must soon wither and become dusty and unappetizing.

SHE RECEIVED IN DETROIT. It would not be easy to see anything in Mrs. Henry Meyer's face which would lead one to believe that she could be the aider of her husband in the poisoning of Gustav Baum and several other persons. Her appearance is certainly in her favor. As she stood at the bar in Part I of General Sessions yesterday, she won additional sympathy on account of her infant, which was born a few weeks ago, while its mother was under arrest charged with a capital crime. Mrs. Meyer has a fine nose, well formed and straight, and would be more than pretty but for her sunken cheeks. She has a pleasant, frank face and intelligent eyes.

She wore a blue gown, with an Eton jacket.

The woman and her two children, the elder, a blue-eyed boy of thirteen months, Arthur, spent

Sunday night in the Mercer-st. station. The three were taken to the General Sessions Building at 10:30 o'clock in a coach, Detectives Von Gerichten and Trainer accompanying them. The officers had charge of the party on the journey here from Detroit, and have become exceedingly friendly with little Arthur, who is a quiet, well-behaved child. The woman was to be arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald. He, however, was kept busy for some time in getting the August Grand Jury, as a number of the talesmen did not appear. A good many petty jurors wanted to be excused, and the Judge had to listen to the stories of all. Mrs. Meyer and the children were therefore taken to the room of Assistant District-Attorney McIntyre, where they remained until 12:40 o'clock. Then Detective Von Gerichten took the woman upstairs to the court-

Detective Trainer. Mrs. Meyer's lawyers, Charles W. Brooke, Dr. W. J. O'Sullivan and Lewis S. Chanler, were all in court. Mr. Brooke had thought of asking that the woman be sent to a hospital, on the ground that she is still ill. Mr. Mcintyre, however, moved after she had pleaded not guilty to the indictment for murder, that she be committed to Ludlow Street.

room; she carried the infant, but left Arthur with

Jail, so that she might be properly cared for.

Mr. Brooke strenuously objected to this. He said that only prisoners in the custody of the Sheriff could be committed to that institution, and denied that Judge Fitzgerald had any right to grant Mr. McIntyre's motion. Mr. Brooke evidently took no stock in the explanation of Mr. McIntyre, believing that the prosecution wanted to keep Meyer and his wife as far apart as possible. The husband is in the Tombs. Mr. Brooke wound up by saying that if Mrs. Meyer was committed to the Ludlow Street Jail he would secure her transfer by a writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. McIntyre suggested that Arthur be sent to the nursery on Randall's Island, but the lawyers for the defence said they would out for the child. Judge Fitzgerald served his decision until the a noon. Then he announced that Mrs. Meyer w have to go to the Tombs. As to the older child, Judge Fitzgerald said he had nothing to do with him, so the boy also went to the Tombs. A nurse will be employed to take care of him.

He tried to get into her confidence by telling her that he came from her confidence by telling her that he came from the same part of Germany that she did. He told her that her husband had pleaded guilty, and tried to make her confess her guilt. She was convinced that her food was drugged. When the interview with Dr. O'Sullivan here was published in the Detroit papers, she was asked to contradict his statements. This she would not do, so a pretended denial of them was sent out.

Even if husband and wife are kept apart in the Tombs, it will be easy for their counsel to communicate with both, and to carry any message from one to the other. The prosecution, therefore, cannot prevent this indirect conferring.

Miss Annie Colono, who lives on the second floor of Na 557 West Thirty-second-st., is a young woman who is not to be daunted by the sudden appearance of burglars in her room at the dead of night. Joseph Brafley, sevinteen years old, of No. 516 West Fifty-first-st., on Sunday night climbed up a lead pipe to the second story to the room occupied by Miss Colono, and dropped softly for the second story to the floor while she was assessed. He grabbed a close of those pow $4. $5. $6. and $7. the floor while she was ascept. He grabbed a clock off those now $4, $5, $6, and $7.

the montel. As he was excepting the young woman awoke and clutched him tightly by the threat. She held him and screamed until Policeman Repperlin, of the West with vests to match for $1, ought to be known about. Thirty-eventh-st. station, arrived and arrested him. Jus-
